

Dr. Howard R. Driggs Addresses Lions Club

A challenge was issued the Lions Club members of Cedar City Monday to "preserve the history of Cedar City and Southern Utah," when Dr. Howard R. Driggs of New York City, President of the National Historical Trails and Landmarks Association, addressed the club.

The eminent historian urged the club members to act before many of the historical facts are lost, and make sure that this information is recorded for future generations. "No section of the country," he said, "has a more colorful or thrilling historical background than southern Utah, and the people of the area should make certain that all available historical facts are recorded while almost first hand information is available."

Dr. Driggs was in Cedar City to meet with the local Chapter of the Sons of Utah Pioneers, and to visit with his son, Dr. H. Wayne Driggs, Branch Agricultural College Director.
