Herman Daggett Bayles

Today, we will discuss Herman Daggett Bayles. His accomplishments, family members, stories of his life, and his information.

To open, we will discuss the accomplishments of his life. He was born in New York on July 28, 1812. He traveled from Connecticut to Kirtland, Ohio to Nauvoo, Illinois. He traveled to Utah with Brigham Young as a member of the 1847 Latter Day Saint pioneer immigration. He was one of the first pioneers in Utah. Herman had 12 children—three sons and nine daughters, and 75 grandchildren.

Next, we will discuss his family members. His eldest son was the first bishop of blanding. Herman Daggett Bayles was born in 1812. He died in 1888, of old age. He married Anna Frederikka Thomasdatter Oster. Then their children were Hanson, Juliet, Cecelia, Anna Maria, Emma Theodora. Altogether he had 5 wives but I've decided only to name my ancestor. The son we are related to is Ole Hansen Bayles, who went by Hansen. Hansen married Evelyn Lyman. He had a daughter named Velyn. Velyn married Edward Stevens. They had two children. The eldest was named Merlyn. He married Barbara Wright. They had a son named Dee Stevens. That is my Grandpa. He married Kathy Metcalf, My Grandma. They had a son named Adam, my dad. He married Nicole Whatcott, my mom. And they had me and my three siblings.

After living in Salt Lake City for 3 years he moved to Parowan and built a farm. He was the only carpenter at the time, so Brigham Young put him in charge of building a church. Today, the church is known as the Old Rock Church and you can still visit this old church in Parowan today. He went through the Hole In The Rock expedition in 1883 and passed away in San Juan, Utah in 1888.

In conclusion, my ancestry is really interesting to learn about. I found out that learning about my ancestors can be very interesting and exciting. I loved learning about my ancestor who worked very hard his whole life to help build Utah and raise a big family.
