My Grandpa David Ariel Westover

My grandpa's name is David Ariel Westover and my grandma calls him Handsome. He was born on July 10th in Salt Lake City. He has 4 siblings and a mom and dad.

My grandpa is one of my favorite people. I look up to him and love him. One of the main things I admire him for is something amazing: he reunited a kid with his father. When he told me that story I knew that he was an amazing person. He believes in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and has done two missions that I know of, one in France and Belgium and another in Quebec. He is a crossing guard

My grandpa Westover is really funny. One of our favorite games to play with him is doctor. We tell him that we need the doctor right away; and when he gets to work he uses the most dangerous treatment... tickles!!!!!!!!!!!! In the end, we almost always have a case of the giggles.

Another funny thing is that one time, he took off all his clothes and went streaking down the street. He was only four years old at the time. My great-grandma, who is 92, had to chase him. I'm pretty sure he had a really good talking to after that. So now I think you see the point of this paragraph, he is funny and even to this day looks up funny things on his phone.

Me and my grandpa have lots of things in common. We both like being silly, we both like games, hate pickles and like bugs. We even have the same birthday! When it's our birthday we like to go to one of our houses, usually my grandma and grandpa come to my house. And every year we go to a restaurant together. It's one of my favorite things to do. Last year on our birthday he turned seventy, and I turned nine. It was so fun. My aunt, the master chef, made the birthday cake of glory. There was a blue layer for grandpa on the bottom, with him catching fishies, and a pink mermaid layer for me on the tippity-top.

When I go to visit my grandpa, or he comes to my house sometimes he calls food weird names such as carrots are "rhino toes". We love to have dinner together, read books, and talk with grandma, each other, and the people in my family. We unload the cars, have a family home evening, and more. One of our most favorite things to do is play board and card games. We all like to try to win against grandpa.

One really fun thing we did once was go to a trout farm. For the first bit we used fishing poles and fish food. But then that got boring so I started using my hands and I actually caught a fish by doing that! It was really fun.

He likes to do the piano, reading, and yard work. He also played the trumpet at the state band competition in Nevada and won!!! As you can see my grandpa is an amazing person and anyone that thinks he isn't amazingly awesome is a weirdo. And that is for sure a definite fact. He is loving, caring, funny, and amazing at being a grandpa. I love him, so I say... Three cheers for David Ariel Westover!!!!
