

OFFICERS CAPTURE ILLICIT LIQUOR.

Then Interested Parties Burglarize City Jail and Make Away With the Entire Shipment.

Seven cases of liquor seized by County Sheriff John H. Corry, assisted by City Marshal Nelson and Deputy Hansen, as it was being imported by team from Milford February 26, were extracted from the iron cage of the city's bastille last Friday night, by unknown parties, probably interested in the shipment of booze.

An entrance was made to the city hall through a window, and the iron cage was entered with the aid of a hack saw, with which the hinges were sawed asunder. The discovery was made by officers Saturday morning, and since that time a close watch has been maintained to try and discover the perpetrators of the burglary; for burglary it is, pure and simple, and if the guilty parties are discovered they will be taught a lesson that they will not soon forget.

The illicit importation of liquor is bad enough, but burglary is a much more serious offense under the law. This serves as an example of how one crime leads to another, and when once a person plunges into crime it is impossible to tell where he is going to pull up, or "be pulled up."

No definite information is given out by the officers as to the progress they are making on the case, but there is little doubt but that sooner or later they will locate the perpetrators of the crime and bring them to justice.
