

Tentative Plans Made For Annual Easter Pageant

Representatives of the Cedar City Chamber of Commerce and the Branch Agricultural College met with National Park officials and representatives of civic groups from other southern Utah cities at Hurricane Monday night to formulate tentative plans for the annual Zion Easter Pageant this year.

John M. Davis, assistant superintendent of Zion National Park, presided in the absence of Superintendent Paul R. Franke.

Problems in connection with the annual presentation were discussed at length, and plans for this year's event were tentatively outlined. Another meeting will be held in St. George on February 12th. at which time committees for the handling of the various details will be named.
